Snowboarding in Southern Vermont: From Burton to the U.S. Open Brian L. Knight, 2018

During the 1980s and 1990s, the Manchester and the Mountains area of Vermont was the epicenter of the fledgling sport of snowboarding. With the presence of Burton Snowboards, the U.S. Open Championships and one of the earliest machine-built halfpipes at Stratton Mountain, the local population led the vanguard as the sport ventured from the fringe to mainstream. Ranging from Olympic gold medalists to backhoe operators and converted skiers, locals contributed immensely to the development of the sport. Author Brian Knight details the birth, growth and development of a new worldwide sport from humble beginnings in southern Vermont.

Snowboarding is the fastest-growing winter sport. Over the last decade, its meteoric rise to the top of the international style stakes has spawned a brand new & energetic subculture. Marking the first time the sport has been extensively covered in book form, Blower offers a view from snowboarding’s inside track, tapping into the information & iconography produced by the specialist print media, clothing & image-making creatives who support it. Across the world, a huge variety of people live in pursuit of the slope’s ultimate adrenaline rush. It’s an experience that breeds a serious brand of tribalism. For the professional riders & photographers who chase the weather & competition circuit around the globe, the fans who attend events to wonder at technical feats, or those people who just love to let loose in the backwoods, snowboarding is something that demands -- & deserves -- an extreme level of commitment. But to those featured in Blower, snowboarding is more than a passion, it’s their life. The book is compiled by two friends who used to work together for Vermont-based Burton Snowboards, arguably the world's leading gear manufacturer. Widely published in the specialist press, photographer Jeff Curtes has been photographing snowboarding, primarily for Burton, since first taking to the slopes with his pro-rider brother; Eric Kotch is Burton's Director of Photography. Featuring words & images from snowboarding’s inner circle, Blower depicts all aspects of the sport with a vivid edit of photography, design, illustration, prose & quotes -- everything from the day-to-day minutiae of chapped lips & weather conditions to the superstar style of a professional's hectic schedule. Published in collaboration with Burton. Designed by Jared Eberhardt & Jim Anfuso. DVD shot & directed by Jon Boyer.

28 Day Winter 2007-11-01 Every year the Burton snowboard team travels south chasing snow. 28 Day Winter: A Snowboarding Narrative documents a specific moment in time: August 2006, when Dean Blotto Gray, Jeff Curtes, and Adam Moran circled the globe with the world's best snowboarders. These young athletes, all between the ages of 15 and 30, comprise an elite team of Olympic gold medalists, legendary pioneers, and big mountain champions. Burton's photographers not only snowboarded right alongside these power players through the life-threatening courses and first descents down Methven and Wanaka, New Zealand and Termas De Chillan, Chile, capturing the airborne 720-degree rotations and flights across man-made and natural obstacles, but also accompanied them in their travels and downtime. An intimate and penetrating glance into the lives and feats of professional athletes, 28 Day Winter is an epic photographic narrative that captures these snowboarders pushing the limits of riding in the ultimate conditions, documents the ultimate trip, and inspires us all to ride. Snowboarders featured in the book include Terje Haakonsen, the Norwegian legend; Shaun White, the gnarly American Olympic gold medalist; Nicolas Muller, the Swiss freestyle champion; Kelly Clark, Olympic gold medalist and big mountain champion; Hannah Teeter, Olympic gold medalist; and Victoria Jalous, the Canadian wunderkind.
